INTRODUCTORY

I HAVE been induced to write the following short extracts from the records of the Regiment, Dispatches and other papers connected with the history of the King's Dragoon Guards from 1685 to 1912.

I regret to state that, owing to the limited space at my disposal, they are more or less incomplete, but I hope they will be found interesting by the Members of the Old Comrades Association, for whose information they have been compiled, and that they will be the means of getting more ex-K.D.G. to join and participate in the good work which is now being done by this Association in assisting Men, Women and Children who need help.

My thanks are due to the authorities at the British Museum, the Editor of the Army and Navy Gazette, and Mr. D. A. L. Carey, the Librarian at the War Office, whose assistance was most helpful.

I hope in the near future that some Officer with time and money at his disposal will write a complete History of the Regiment.

I. O'DONNELL, Captain.
(Late King's Dragoon Guards.)

1ST KING'S DRAGOON GUARDS

1685.—The Regiment was raised chiefly near London, during the Monmouth Rebellion, in June of this year, and was designated the “Queen’s” or “2nd Regiment of Horse,” the then 1st King’s Regiment being “The Blues.”

The colonelcy was conferred upon Sir John Lanier by commission dated 6th June, 1685.

The establishment was nine troops.

The first was raised by Sir John Lanier (Knight).

„ second	„	„	Major William Legge.
„ third	„	„	Captain Henry Lumley.
„ fourth	„	„	Lord George Hamilton.
„ fifth	„	„	Captain John Staples.
„ sixth	„	„	Captain John Lewes.
„ seventh	„	„	Captain Charles Needby.
„ eighth	„	„	Captain George Hastings.
„ ninth	„	„	Captain James Fortrey.

Great success attended the recruiting, and in a few days the troops were organised and occupied quarters near London.

The title of the Regiment was changed in 1714 to that of the “King’s Own Regiment of Horse,” and again, in 1746, to that of “1st King’s Dragoon Guards,” which title it still retains.

The first service performed by the Regiment appears to have been the escorting of the Duke of Monmouth and other prisoners taken at the Battle of Sedgemoor from Winchester to London.

1691.—At the Battle of Aughrim, in Galway, Ireland, the Regiment had 23 men killed and 5 wounded; its loss in horses was 11 killed and 24 wounded.

The “Queen’s Regiment of Horse” had now acquired by its gallantry a high reputation, and was accounted a brave and valorous corps.

1692.—In the middle of August the Regiment arrived at “Williamstadt,” in North Brabant, under the command of Lieut.-Colonel Lumley, and joined the Confederate Army under His Majesty King William in person, in camp near Deysne, about three weeks after the Battle of Steenkirk, in which engagement the colonel, Sir John Lanier, was killed.

Lieut.-Colonel The Honourable Henry Lumley was appointed to command, vice the above-mentioned officer.

1693.—When His Majesty King William, at “Neer-Landen,” was in danger of being taken prisoner, the Regiment, having rallied after its first attack, charged a second time and repulsed the French squadrons, and His Majesty was able to retire.

1695.—On the 29th May the Regiment joined the army near “Arseel,” and on the 31st it was reviewed by His Majesty, and made a very gallant show, the horses being in good order and the men well clothed and armed.

The Regiment was in lines before “Namur” during the siege, but on the 20th August was detached to “Taviers” and “Boneffe.” The enemy sent 40 squadrons to attack the troops at Boneffe, but on the advance of the French, the Confederates retired, covered by the Regiment, which was attacked on its retreating movement; but it repulsed the enemy with great gallantry. Several men and horses were killed, and Lieutenant Alexander was taken prisoner.

1705.—At the Battle of “Neer-Hespen,” on the 18th July, the Regiment was one of the first corps which passed the lines. It charged and defeated several squadrons of the enemy’s cavalry, and afterwards cut a battalion of French infantry to pieces.

1706.—“Ramillies.” The Regiment having descended from the heights of “Foulz,” dashed forward along the plain with its usual boldness, and overthrew all that opposed it. The enemy’s horse rallied on the plain, but, being closely pressed, fled in three directions. The fugitives were, however, soon overtaken. The French Regiment du Roi, after a severe loss, surrendered.

1709.—As the army was moving on “Mons,” and while crossing the Plain of “Hainault,” the advance guard met a corps of French hussars, and the advance of the enemy in force was ascertained. The army deployed, and the King’s Dragoon Guards took its station on the right of the first line.

The “Queen’s Horse” (King’s Dragoon Guards) and other regiments rushed on the enemy with overwhelming fury, and threw part of the French army into disorder, and a most fearful slaughter followed. The pursuit was continued as far as the village of “Quiverain.” In this action Lieutenant Stormount and 10 men were killed.

1714.—In the spring of this year the Regiment returned to England, and on the Accession of King George the First, His Majesty was pleased, in consideration of the brilliant career of the Regiment in the campaigns on the continent, to honour it with the distinguished title of the “King’s Own Regiment of Horse,” and the colour of the facings was changed from yellow to blue.

1717.—On the resignation of General Lumley, Richard Viscount Irwin was appointed colonel, dated the 13th December.

1720.—In February the following were the prices paid for commissions in the Regiment:—

Colonel and captain . . . . .	£9000
Lieutenant-Colonel and captain . . . . .	£4000
Major and captain . . . . .	£3300
Captain . . . . .	£2500
Captain and lieutenant . . . . .	£1500
Lieutenant . . . . .	£1200
Cornet . . . . .	£1000
Adjutant . . . . .	£200

An alteration was made in these prices in 1766.

1721.—On the 10th April the colonelcy of the Regiment, vacant by the death of Viscount Irwin, was conferred upon Richard Viscount Cobham, from the 1st Royal Dragoons.

1722.—At this period the Regiment regularly furnished, in turn with the other Regiments of Horse, detachments to assist the Life Guards in the duties of the Court and metropolis, and in performing the travelling-escort duty for the Royal Family.

1730.—On the 24th June His Majesty reviewed his own Regiment of Horse on "Datchet Common," when the splendid appearance and high state of discipline and efficiency excited general admiration, and received the approbation and thanks of the Sovereign.

1731.—Mr. William Pitt, son of First Earl of Chatham, obtained a coronetcy in the Regiment, and four years later entered Parliament for "Old Sarum," and was dismissed from the Army for his first speech on the marriage of Frederick, Prince of Wales. He was created an earl in 1766, died at Hayes 11th May, 1788, and was buried in Westminster Abbey on 9th June.

As a statesman, and especially as War Minister, he possessed ability of a high order.

1742.—The Regiment was one of the first corps to embark for service in the Netherlands, under supreme command of the Earl of Stair. After experiencing severe weathers at sea, it disembarked at Ostend on the 30th August and marched to Ghent.

1743.—In April, General Sir Philip Honeywood was appointed colonel of the Regiment.

In the middle of the action at "Dettingen" the Regiment was moved to the left of the line, to drive back a portion of the enemy's cavalry which was endeavouring to turn that flank, which service it performed with great gallantry.

The loss in this engagement was: Killed: Captain Meriden, Lieutenant Draper, Cornet Aldcroft, 8 privates and 20 horses; wounded: Major Carr, Captains Saurin and Smith, Lieutenant Wallis, 2 quartermasters, 28 troopers and 24 horses.

After the battle the troops bivouacked on the ground, surrounded by the dying and the dead, and remained all night without food and exposed to a heavy rain.

1745.—At “Fontenoy” the Regiment displayed its accustomed bravery, and its losses were 7 men and 20 horses killed, and Lieutenant Brace, 4 men and 6 horses wounded.

1746.—The Regiment arrived in England on the 1st March and formed part of the army assembled to oppose the threatened descent of the French on the southern coast.

The rebellion in Scotland, in favour of the Young Pretender, being terminated by the defeat of the Insurgents at “Culloden,” King George II. disbanded two troops of Life Guards and ordered His Own Regiment of Horse (King's Dragoon Guards) to be placed upon the pay and establishment of Dragoons, with the title of Dragoon Guards. Their pay and allowances as such commenced on the 25th December.

A slight alteration was at the same time made in the uniform. The officers were distinguished by gold lace and embroidery on their regimentals, and a crimson silk sash was worn over the left shoulder; the quartermasters by gold lace and silk sashes worn round the waist; and the sergeants by narrow laces on the lapels, sleeves and pockets, and a worsted sash round the waist.

1747.—The following is an extract from His Majesty's warrant:—

“Whereas we have thought fit to order Our Own Regiment of Horse, commanded by our trusty and well-beloved General Sir Philip Honeywood, to be formed into a Regiment of Dragoons, to commence on the 25th December, 1746.

“Our Regiment of Dragoons now under command of General Sir Philip Honeywood shall bear the Title of Our First Regiment of Dragoon Guards.

“Given at Our Court of St. James, this Ninth day of January, 1747, in the twelfth year of Our Reign.

“By His Majesty's Command,

“(Signed) H. Fox.”

The following was then the establishment:—

6 staff officers.

9 troops each consisting of:

1 captain, 1 lieutenant, 1 cornet, 1 quartermaster, 3 sergeants, 3 corporals, 2 drummers, 1 hautbois, 59 Dragoons.

1750.—The services of the Regiment in times of peace, owing to disturbances during this period, were requisitioned for in the month of July, when three troops obtained great credit for forbearance displayed when suppressing disturbances in Birmingham.

1751.—In this year the officers and men were directed to wear aiguillettes on the left shoulder, the officers' and sergeants' to be gold cord and the men's worsted.

1752. On the death of Sir Philip Honeywood, K.B., in July, Lieutenant-General Humphrey Bland was appointed Colonel of the King's Dragoon Guards, on transfer from 3rd Dragoons.

1759.—The Regiment was again on service on the Continent, and on the 28th August formed part of the brigade which attacked Colonel Fischer's Corps of about 2000 men at “Wetter”; 60 of the enemy were killed, and a great number wounded, and 400 prisoners were taken, with many horses and camp equipage of the corps.

The pursuit of the French army was continued for about 200 miles, when several French corps were nearly annihilated.

1760.—On the 10th July the enemy advanced to the heights of “Corbach.”

The Hereditary Prince of Brunswick, who had been dispatched with a detachment of the main army to occupy that post, imagining it was only the enemy's advance guard, resolved to attack them and gain possession of that post, but when the engagement commenced he found an army ready formed to oppose him, and reinforcements constantly arriving. It was now too late to recede. The action grew furious and the French fought with great bravery. At length the Prince ordered a retreat. The enemy attacked the rear of the Allies and several foreign corps were thrown into confusion, and followed up this advantage with a large body of cavalry and a numerous artillery. The condition of the detachment had now become desperate, and its entire destruction appeared inevitable, when the Hereditary Prince of Brunswick, as a last resource, put himself at the head of a squadron of the 1st King's Dragoon Guards and led that regiment with the 3rd Dragoon Guards against the legions that were pouring down upon his rear. These squadrons dashed forward with that intrepidity which characterises the charge of British cavalry; the troops of the enemy were thrown into disorder, and numbers fell beneath the conquering sabres of the English Dragoon Guards. This repulse damped the ardour of the foe, and the Allied infantry, rescued from impending destruction by the distinguished bravery of the 1st and 3rd Dragoon Guards, was enabled to make an undisturbed retreat.

A squadron of the Regiment, commanded by Major Sandys-Mill, is reported to have distinguished itself on this occasion in a most particular manner.

The King's Dragoon Guards lost in this action—Killed : 47 men and 58 horses; wounded : Lieutenant Jacob, 7 men, and 2 horses.

On the 31st July the Army attacked 35,000 of the French near “Warbourg,” and gained a complete victory. The loss of the King's Dragoon Guards in this action was 7 men and 17 horses killed, and Cornet Earl, 28 men and 4 horses wounded.

1764.—In the month of July an alteration was made in the uniform, viz. the officers and men were ordered to wear epaulettes on the left shoulder, instead of shoulder knots. The heavy jack boots were also laid aside and lighter boots substituted. The officers were directed to discontinue the binding of lace or embroidery to their regimentals; at the same time the colour of the waistcoats and breeches was changed from blue to buff.

In November of this year the sizes of the men and horses were fixed by regulation: the men not to be under 5 feet 8 inches nor above 5 feet ten inches—the horses not to be under 15 hands 1 inch. At the same time the Regiment was ordered to be remounted with long-tailed horses.

1766.—During this year trumpeters were brought in to replace drummers.

A board of general officers fixed the prices to be paid for Commissions as follows :—

Lieutenant-Colonel . . . . .	£5350
Major . . . . .	£4250
Captain . . . . .	£3150
Captain-Lieutenant . . . . .	£2100
Lieutenant . . . . .	£1365
Cornet . . . . .	£1102

1791.—In July of this year, a detachment was sent to Birmingham, to suppress the outrageous proceedings of the populace. These riots were connected with the political state of Europe, and a number of persons met at Birmingham to celebrate the anniversary of the French Revolution. After the arrival of the military order was restored, and the spirited conduct of officers of the King's Dragoon Guards on this occasion gained them the approbation of His Majesty, which was communicated by the Secretary at War dated 26th July.

1792.—The Regiment was reviewed by His Majesty on Ashford Common (on the 29th April), who was pleased to express his approbation of its appearance and exercise.

1793.—In December, an augmentation of 90 men was made in the establishment, and in February a further addition of 11 men per troop. A few weeks after this the regiment received orders to hold itself in readiness for foreign service on the Continent.

Six troops of the Regiment, accompanying a body of troops under command of His Royal Highness the Duke of York, were dispatched to assist the Continental States in opposing the French. These troops embarked on the 11th July, under the command of Colonel Vyse, and after a quick passage, landed at Ostend in "West Flanders." The Regiment marched in the direction of "Nieuport," which place was besieged by the French, but on the advance of our troops the enemy raised the siege.

1794.—The King's Dragoon Guards performed a particular distinguished part in the action at "Beaumont." They attacked the enemy with remarkable spirit, and, after a long and sanguinary conflict, captured several pieces of cannon, with a number of ammunition wagons, for which service the regiment received £500 by order of the Duke of York.

The following is an extract from General Orders issued by His Royal Highness after the action :—

"The Austrian Regiment of Cuirassiers of 'Zetchwitz,' The Blues, 1st, 3rd and 5th Dragoon Guards, The Royal Archduke Ferdinand's Hussars, and the 16th Light Dragoons, who attacked and defeated the principal column of the enemy on the right, have all acquired immortal honour to themselves."

The loss in this engagement was—Killed : 7 men and 29 horses ; missing : Cornet Betson, 23 men and 64 horses. Three men died of their wounds. Cornet Caulfield was taken prisoner in the early part of the action, but was retaken in the course of the day.

1795.—The Regiment returned to England and landed at South Shields towards the end of December, having sustained a loss of 76 men and 353 horses during the period the six troops had been on Foreign Service.

1796.—In this year a Veterinary Surgeon was added to the establishment and the Commission of the Regimental Chaplain was abolished.

Alteration in uniform. The length of the men's coats was considerably reduced, and the lace on the men's cocked hats was discontinued. Shoulder straps, yellow with red wings interlaced with brass plates, were introduced in place of epaulettes. Waistcoat, red. Breeches, plush. Hat, new pattern, something in shape like a felt hat turned up back and front.

The arms, etc., at this period were :—

Firelocks, 2 large horse pistols, sword and bayonet ; cartouch pouch to carry 30 rounds of ammunition.

1797.—Robert Richards was gazetted as Veterinary Surgeon on the 6th June. This was the first gentleman to hold this appointment in the Regiment.

1798.—The muskets or firelocks and large pistols, heretofore used, were replaced by carbines and a single pistol of smaller size.

1799.—In July the Regiment was mounted on "Nag-tailed" black horses. In the same year an addition of one troop was made, and an order given for 8 troops to be held in readiness for foreign service, but this order was subsequently cancelled.

1800.—On the 1st March another troop was added to the establishment.

In June 10 troops were encamped in Windsor Forest and the remainder at Croydon.

1803.—During this year three Captains were added to the establishment, which released the field officers from the charge of troops ; and subsequently an addition of 2 troops was made.

1809.—The men up to this time wore their hair long, tied in a "queue" and powdered. This practice was abolished and the hair cut short.

1810.—The Colonel of the 1st King's Dragoon Guards performed the Court duty of Gold Stick in Waiting, an honour heretofore limited to Colonels of the Life Guards.

1812.—An alteration was made in the uniform. Cocked hats were replaced by helmets, with long black horsehair plumes on the crest. At the same time cloth pantaloons and short boots were adopted ; also narrow sword belts to pass round the waist, and horse appointments of brown leather.

The 12 Troop Quartermasters were replaced by a Regimental Quartermaster (James Scott) and 12 Troop Sergeant-Majors, and a Schoolmaster Sergeant was added to the establishment.

The total strength was then 46 commissioned officers and 1037 rank and file.

1813.—When quartered at "Clonmel," the vicinity of the quarters occupied by the Regiment was disturbed by robbers, and the Mail from "Clonmel" to "Limerick" was plundered. The Postmaster then applied for a mounted escort. On the 27th April two men (Joseph Englefield and Abraham Cook) were sent on that duty and secured two highwaymen, for which service they received the thanks of the magistrate and a reward of £10 each.

In December further alterations were made in the uniform. The narrow lace across the breast of the coat was discontinued, and gauntlets were replaced by short gloves.

- 1814.—After the subjugation of Napoleon Buonaparte, who was sent into exile on the Isle of Elba, the strength of the Army was reduced; that of the King's Dragoon Guards was diminished to 10 troops, the total of all ranks being 726.

The Regiment returned to England in the winter of this year.

- 1815.—Buonaparte, having escaped from the Island of Elba, a British Army was assembled in the Netherlands and 8 troops of the King's Dragoon Guards were ordered to take the field. The establishment was again increased to 12 troops, and its total strength was 1148 officers and men.

Four squadrons of the Regiment landed in Ostend on the 24th April and were brigaded with two regiments of Life Guards and the Royal Horse Guards, which constituted the first British Cavalry Brigade.

"Buonaparte" having by a rapid advance with the French army suddenly attacked the outpost of the Allies, the Duke of Wellington gave orders for the troops to concentrate at a farm house called "Quatre-Bras," on the high-road from "Charleroi" to "Brussels."

The King's Dragoon Guards received orders to march at 3 o'clock in the morning of the 16th of June, and reached Quatre-Bras about 8 p.m., and bivouacked in a cornfield.

On the 17th of June, the Army retired to take up a position in rear of Genappe. The First Cavalry Brigade formed part of the force which covered the retreat, and the left half-squadron of the King's Dragoon Guards was engaged in a sharp skirmish with the advance guard of the enemy.

The Allied Army took up a position in front of the village of Waterloo, and was attacked on the 18th June by the French Army, commanded by Buonaparte in person.

The main attack of the French Army was made with great fury, and was resisted with equal determination. Our first line was somewhat shaken, and an immense body of French Cuirassiers was advancing to force the centre of the position, when the First Cavalry Brigade made one of the most spirited charges in line ever witnessed.

The advance of the enemy's boasted, invincible Cuirassiers was made with daring intrepidity, and their appearance was particularly imposing, but by the gallant charge of the Life Guards, Royal Horse Guards, and King's Dragoon Guards, those mailed warriors of France were overthrown and pursued with dreadful carnage to the rear of their own lines.

After returning from the pursuit the Brigade resumed its former position, and was exposed to a most destructive cannonade, but was soon afterwards called upon to advance against a close column of the enemy's cavalry. The Brigade attacked this column with great spirit, and after a sharp contest the French were forced to retire with considerable loss.

The Brigade next advanced against a body of French Infantry, which was also driven from its ground with great loss. At length the disorder into which the enemy had been thrown induced the Duke of Wellington to make a general attack with the whole of his forces. In this last attack the First Cavalry Brigade overthrew all that opposed its advance, and particularly signalised itself in the engagement.

During the action the Duke of Wellington came to the head of the Brigade and thanked the squadrons for their distinguished gallantry.

In his dispatch His Grace was pleased to state :—

“ Lord Edward Somerset’s Brigade, consisting of the Life Guards, Royal Horse Guards, and First King’s Dragoon Guards, highly distinguished themselves.”

The loss of the Regiment in this action was :—

Killed : Lieut.-Colonel Fuller (commanding the Regiment), Brevet Majors Bringham and Graham, Captain Battersby, Lieutenant Brooke, Cornet The Honourable H. B. Bernard and Adjutant Shelper, 2 Troop sergeant-majors, 11 sergeants, 109 rank and file and 269 horses.

Wounded : Captains Turner, Naylor and Sweny, Lieutenant Irvine, 2 troop sergeant-majors, 4 sergeants, 1 trumpeter, and 123 rank and file.

On the following day the army moved forward in pursuit of the enemy, and continued its route until it arrived at the vicinity of the Metropolis, which surrendered after a short resistance, and the campaign concluded.

1816.—Previous to the Regiment’s embarkation for England it was reviewed by Lieutenant-General Lord Combermere, who passed the highest encomiums on its gallantry in the field, and the propriety of its conduct in quarters.

To commemorate the distinguished service of the Regiment on the 18th June, 1815, it was permitted to bear the word “ Waterloo ” on its Standards and accoutrements, and every officer and man present in that engagement received a silver medal with the privilege of reckoning two years’ service towards increase of pay and pension.

On the 7th of May the Regiment disembarked at Dover, from whence it marched to Hounslow Heath, and was reviewed by His Royal Highness the Duke of York.

On the 20th May, two squadrons proceeded to Colchester, in consequence of some disturbance at that place.

The Regiment afterwards marched into the manufacturing districts of Yorkshire and Lancashire, where some riots had taken place amongst the weavers.

In October the Establishment was reduced to 345 mounted and 290 dismounted men.

1817.—In March of this year disturbances occurred at Manchester, and the King’s Dragoon Guards received the thanks of His Majesty’s Government for services rendered on that occasion.

1819.—Long coats with cross-bar lace were restored, and the colour of the overalls was changed from blue-grey to a dark grey.

1821.—In August a reduction of two troops was made in the establishment, the total strength being 34 officers, 337 mounted and 108 dismounted men.

1829.—In April and May the Regiment was employed in aid of the civil power at Macclesfield, Rochdale, and Manchester; the excellent conduct of the troops at the latter place produced a letter of thanks from the civil authorities of the town.

1830.—During the summer of this year the Regiment was repeatedly employed in aid of the civil power at Limerick, Ennis, Clonmel, Waterford, Cashel, and other places. There was so much excitement in Ireland, that the troops were constantly on the march, and more harassing and painful services were even more frequent in the following year.

1834.—On the 17th January the Regiment was reviewed by His Most Gracious Majesty, King William IV., accompanied by the Queen, who were pleased to express their approbation of the appearance of the troops, and His Majesty presented to the Regiment a cream-coloured horse in exchange for the only remaining "Waterloo horse" in the corps.

1835.—One troop of the Regiment, under command of Captain Manning, was called upon to perform the painful duty of dispersing the rioters at an election in Wolverhampton. This service was executed with great firmness and forbearance, under every provocation and insult.

The conduct of Captain Manning, Lieutenant Brander, and the men under their command, however, became the subject of investigation, and occasioned an official communication from one of the magistrates to Lieutenant-Colonel Thorn, of the Quartermaster General's Department, which was presented to that officer by the Magistrates at Wolverhampton on the 30th May, of which the following is a short extract:—

"The King's Dragoon Guards' conduct has been truly excellent that no language of mine can do them full justice.

"(Signed) SAMUEL, STONE, BRISCO,

"Magistrates for Staffordshire."

The inhabitants presented a silver snuff-box and cigar-case to Captain Manning and Lieutenant Brander, together with a list, subscribed by 58 gentlemen of the town.

On the box forwarded to Captain Manning is engraved:—

"Presented to Captain I. S. Manning of the 1st King's Dragoon Guards in testimony of their approbation and gratitude, by those Inhabitants of Wolverhampton who witnessed the commendable forbearance and correct judgment which marked his military conduct in suppressing the Riots in that Town on the 27th May, 1835."

On Lieutenant Brander's box is the following:—

"Presented to Lieutenant T. C. Brander, 1st King's Dragoon Guards, by the Inhabitants of Wolverhampton as a testimony of their approbation of his military conduct while engaged in suppressing the Riots in that Town on the 27th May, 1835."

In compliance with a requisition from the Civil Authorities at Lichfield, a squadron of the Regiment proceeded to that town on the 29th May, and returned on the succeeding day, and the following is an extract from a letter from the Magistrates to the Officer commanding the Regiment :—

“The under-signed Magistrates of the City of Lichfield cannot take leave of Captain Tyssen, Lieutenants Hammersley, Sands, Turner, and Cornet Lord Amiens without thanking them for the promptitude with which they attended to the requisition for Military aid to which the Magistrates attribute the prevention of serious injury to property, if not to the lives of His Majesty's Subjects.

“Signed, EDWARD BOND,

“THOMAS ADIE, Junior Bailiff,

1838.—The insurrection of the French in Lower Canada necessitated increasing the Army in that country.

Three squadrons of the Regiment embarked on the 11th May, under the command of Captain Manning, strength 324 men and 270 horses, in four transports, the last of which arrived in Quebec on the 22nd June.

Colonel The Hon. G. Cathcart took command of the Regiment on the 7th July.

The first part of the Insurrection had been suppressed before the arrival of the King's Dragoon Guards, but an extensive organisation was still in progress among the rebellious party, who had fled into the United States.

The circumstances of the Upper Province required immediate reinforcement, and one squadron under Captain Martin was sent to the Niagara Frontier on the 7th July. This squadron obtained great credit for the exemplary conduct of some of the men, in detecting and bringing to justice persons who attempted to induce them to desert, which called forth a Complimentary Order from Major-General Sir George Arthur.

Two squadrons were moved to Chambley, where their services were likely to be required, and arrived at that Station on the 18th October.

On the following morning the wooden barracks occupied by the 15th Foot, adjoining those built for the Cavalry, and partly occupied by the King's Dragoon Guards, was observed to be on fire. By the prompt exertions of the men of the latter Regiment, several lives and much property were saved, but so sudden and rapid was the conflagration that 2 officers of the 15th perished.

On the 8rd November a general rising of Rebels was anticipated in the Lower Province, and a detachment under the command of Captain Scott was sent to St. John's to arrest one “Gagnon” who resided six miles below St. John's, who was well known as a ringleader of the Insurgents. He, however, escaped, but his son was arrested: this was the first measure taken in the second Insurrection.

It was now ascertained that the Rebels had assembled in force at Napierville under command of Robert Nelson, and that similar assemblies were taking place in the neighbourhood of Chambley, Sorel, and Three Rivers, and that on the night of the 3rd November, St. John's was to have been burnt as a general signal, and an attack was to have been made on Chambley.

Colonel Cathcart having received information that the disaffected of five neighbouring parishes had assembled at the houses of two farmers in the parish of Chambley, about five miles from the barracks, he proceeded with a squadron of the King's Dragoon Guards and surrounded the premises, and some arms, implements for melting lead and making cartridges, and two prisoners were taken. The result was, that the Insurgents who had assembled dispersed, some carrying their arms, into the Boucherville Mountains, and others returning to their homes.

Martial Law was proclaimed on the 4th November, and Field Officers were given the powers of Justice of the Peace for the District of Montreal. The Regiment was then actively employed in making arrests, and seeking out the haunts of the principal ringleaders, and committing the offenders to Montreal gaol for High Treason.

The Rebels at Napierville, who had not attempted anything against St. John's, had not dispersed, but were daily increasing in numbers, and with the aid of a French officer, the Commander (or as he styled himself "Grand Eagle") was endeavouring to organise them.

Sir John Colborne determined to take vigorous measures to put an end to the Rebellion, and among other arrangements, for a concentration at St. John's. Two squadrons of the Regiment proceeded to that town, leaving one squadron in charge of the buildings, stores, etc., at Chambley.

On the 10th November orders were given for a general movement on Napierville, where it was estimated there were about 3000 Rebels. The King's Dragoon Guards, under command of Colonel Cathcart, were attached to the left column of this force, and ascended the right bank of the St. Lawrence to St. Valentine, and occupied posts to cover the landing of the 73rd Regiment and Artillery.

Soon after daybreak on the 11th November the several columns met at Napierville; the Rebels dispersed on their approach—many saving themselves in the woods, and two or three hundred surrendered, amongst whom was the French officer of the name of "Hindelaney," who was afterwards tried and executed.

Sir J. Colborne decided to proceed to Odeltown, and the King's Dragoon Guards formed his escort, and when they arrived at the Frontier, at 6 p.m., the horses had been mounted, with the exception of one hour, since 4 a.m., and had been constantly in motion through bad roads for 13 hours. The horses did not appear distressed, and those procured in America appeared to stand the work fully as well as the imported ones.

The Regiment returned to Chambley on the 14th of November.

The Rebels in the Boucherville Mountains, disheartened by the dispersion at Napierville, had through the "Curé" of Chambley, offered to surrender to Colonel Cathcart. Three pieces of cannon, some hundred stand of arms, cartridges, etc., were then seized.

On the 24th November Captain Manning crossed the Rapids with his troop on the march to St. Hyacinth, where he arrived next day. It was discovered that the principal inhabitants of this town—some of rank and station in the country—had been deeply implicated in the revolt.

Eight of these were arrested and sent to Montreal escorted by Captain Manning's troop.

Various similar services were performed by the King's Dragoon Guards in suppressing internal commotions, and though it became their duty to resort to vigorous measures, their good discipline and exemplary conduct secured them the respect and esteem, even of those against whom they were called upon to act, as was evinced by the numerous signatures to an address expressive of the above sentiments afterwards presented by the "Curé" of Chambley, and which was subscribed to by men of all parties of French and English origin.

1839.—On the 24th May the Regiment assembled at Montreal to celebrate the Queen's Birthday, and returned to Chambley the following day.

1843.—The Regiment commenced its march en route for England on the 9th July, and proceeded to Quebec for embarkation. Five transports were utilised in bringing the Regiment home, and after prosperous voyages landed the troops in succession at Ramsgate, and on the 6th October they arrived at Canterbury, where they were quartered, this being the first assembly of the whole Regiment since 1828.

1843–1855.—During this period the Regiment was quartered in England, Ireland and Scotland, and on the 11th August, 1855, arrived in the East to take part in the War in the Crimea (strength of all ranks 353), and formed part of the Heavy Cavalry Brigade during the latter part of that war.

The number of killed or died up to 9th September, 1855, was 25.

The Regiment left the Crimea for England on the 19th and 22nd June and 16th and 22nd July, 1856, in different transports.

Captain H. D. Slade was A.D.C. to General Sir York-Scarlett, and left the Crimea on medical certificate on 25th September, 1854.

The following officers were sent to the Bosphorus on account of ill health :—Paymaster W. Smith, Adjutant D. Wall, Quartermaster J. Bradbury, Assistant-Surgeon J. Jephson.

1857.—The Regiment, for the first time, proceeded to East India during this year, with a view to taking part in suppressing the Mutiny, which was then raging in that country, but on arrival at Calcutta, suitable horses could not be provided to mount the men, who, at that period, were the heaviest of the "Heavies." The result was very much to the annoyance of the officers and men. The Regiment was then sent to Bangalore, in the Madras Presidency. They were also stationed, at a later period, at Secunderabad.

1857.—It was during the time the Regiment was quartered in this last station that two squadrons proceeded on active service (1860) to China.

1860.—Two squadrons of the Regiment, strength 14 officers, 312 men and 313 horses, under command of Lieut.-Colonel Sayer, were ordered to China on the outbreak of hostilities with that country, embarked at Madras on 2nd March and arrived at Tientsin in August. They performed the latter part of the journey to this place by land. Mr. Ward, the Political Officer, reports that the march has been most prosperous; that the people, though greatly alarmed at their appearance, took heart when they found they were not maltreated, and offered readily for sale such supplies as the country afforded.

In consequence of heavy rains, the troops were unable to leave Pehtang until the morning of the 12th August. On arriving within range of the first camp, the Artillery opened fire on some Tartar Cavalry, and soon drove them out of their position, about five miles out of Pehtang. Whilst this was going on, a large body of Tartar Cavalry came down, and rode within 200 yards of Sir Robert Napier's Artillery. The Infantry opened fire, and the Cavalry charged and dispersed them, causing them considerable loss.

Lieut.-General Sir Hope Grant thanked Brigadier-General Pattle, King's Dragoon Guards, for the admirable manner in which he commanded the Cavalry, and for the excellent manner in which the troops acquitted themselves.

On August 24th, an attack was made on the Tartar post at the Sing-Ho Entrenchment, in which the King's Dragoon Guards were engaged. As soon as the enemy's movements were clearly defined, Brigadier Pattle was ordered to detach a troop to protect the right rear of the column, and to take the opportunity to charge the Tartar horsemen. The charge was a complete success, and the Tartar Horse were driven from the field in disorder. The two squadrons of the Regiment under the command of Lieut.-Colonel Sayer, particularly distinguished themselves in this charge. The Chinese Army then retired on Peking.

Forty-five guns were taken during this action, and the loss of the enemy was severe. The Allied Troops then proceeded to attack the Taku Forts.

Sir Hope Grant, in his despatch of 22nd September, states :—

"I should wish more particularly to bring to notice the very excellent services of the King's Dragoon Guards. The country is unfavourable for cavalry, partly from the number of the ditches and partly on account of the crops of maize, etc., having been recently cut, leaving sharp-pointed stubble, most injurious to horses, and rendering their rapid movement very difficult. Their charge was, however, most effective, and they surmounted every obstacle in a most creditable manner."

One private was killed, and Captain G. Bradbury and 7 men were wounded.

On the 1st September one squadron was engaged with the enemy, and arrived just in time to assist in the charge of the Allied troops, and cut up a great number of the enemy.

Peking.—The troops were encamped in front of the city on the 13th October, and the easternmost gate on the north side of the city was occupied by the Allied troops without opposition.

Amongst those taken into captivity by the Chinese on different occasions was Private Phipps, King's Dragoon Guards, and Sir Hope Grant writes—

"Nor can I omit to mention Private Phipps, 1st King's Dragoon Guards, who was the last surviving European of his party. He encouraged the Sikhs in every way he could until his decease, on the fourteenth day of his captivity, thus well sustaining the reputation of a British soldier under most trying circumstances."

For this campaign the following were added to the list of honours :—
Taku Forts, Pekin. Lieut.-Colonels Pattle and Sayer were awarded the C.B. for their services in this campaign.

1865.—The Regiment returned to England during this year, and was quartered on arrival at Shorncliffe Camp.

1866–1879.—During this period the King's Dragoon Guards again performed the usual duties in time of peace in the United Kingdom.

1879.—The Regiment, under the command of Lieut.-Colonel H. Alexander, strength 634 all ranks and 545 horses, left England to take part in the Zulu War, and disembarked at Durban on the 9th April.

On the 11th May the Regiment proceeded by march route to Pietermaritzburg, and from there to Dundee. On the 20th May, General Marshall, with the King's Dragoon Guards and left wing of the 17th Lancers, marched to Rorke's Drift, and bivouacked near Fort Melville, their object being to visit the battlefield of Isandhlwana. Next day the Regiment crossed the Buffalo River, and proceeding past Sirayo's stronghold, worked round and over the hills, and descended to Isandhlwana, and found the battlefield deserted. Vedettes were posted, and many of the dead were then buried.

One squadron of the Regiment accompanied the advance of the 2nd Division, which concentrated on the Blood River by the end of May.

On the 2nd June "D" and "H" Troops discovered the body of the late Prince Imperial of France at Ityotosi River.

On the 4th June news was received that a considerable force of Zulus were in the vicinity of Ityotosi. General Marshall, with the cavalry, reconnoitred the track in advance, as far as the valley of the Upoko River. Here a junction was effected with Buller's flying column, who had found about 300 Zulus collected near some kraals on the eastern side of the Upoko, and obliged them to retire on the lower slopes of the Eyuganyani Hill.

Colonel Drury Lowe advanced with three troops of the 17th Lancers, and came under fire of the Zulus. In the skirmish which now ensued General Marshall moved forward a squadron of the 1st King's Dragoon Guards to support the Lancers, who were ordered to withdraw. They fell back steadily, and the two reconnoitring parties returned to their camping grounds.

This squadron was posted at Fort Newdigate on the 7th June, to keep open the Lines of Communication.

On the 8th June communications were opened with Rorke's Drift, and a squadron of the Regiment at that place arrived unmolested at the camp at Upoko, and returned the following day.

On the 13th June certain changes in the organisation of the 2nd Division were announced. The regular cavalry were divided into two parties. The Regiment was then distributed along the Lines of Communication, a squadron being left at each important post.

One squadron joined General Wood's flying column on the 7th June, and was in charge of the convoy which was pushed on to Koppie-Allien. The Tombokala was reached on the 14th June, and the troops were encamped on the left bank of the Nondweni on the 16th. The Flying Column then resumed its leading position, and the troops which had been attached returned to their respective columns.

Two squadrons were stationed at Conference Hill, on the Lines of Communication, and one squadron was attached to Baker Russell's column.

Lieutenant Brewster and 24 men of the Regiment were present at the Battle of Ulundi, and accompanied the 17th Lancers in pursuit of the Zulus in their retreat for a distance of some three miles across the slope of the hills, and acquitted themselves as soldiers of the King's Dragoon Guards have always done.

Major Brownlow, King's Dragoon Guards, acted as Orderly Officer to General Sir Drury Lowe on this occasion.

This engagement practically finished the campaign.

The following is an extract from a despatch from General Sir Garnet Wolsey :—

"I have the honour to report that after a well-sustained pursuit through a most difficult country, extending over sixteen days, Ketchwayo, the ex-King of the Zulus, was captured on the 28th ~~October~~ August by a patrol and one squadron of King's Dragoon Guards and others under the command of Major Marter, King's Dragoon Guards, to whom every praise is due for the skilful manner in which the capture was effected."

Major Marter was promoted Lieutenant-Colonel in recognition of the above service.

On peace being proclaimed the Regiment was moved into the Transvaal, and was stationed at Wakkerstroom, Pretoria, and Heidelberg until October, 1880, when it proceeded to Meerut, East India.

The Regiment was inspected by Major-General Sir George P. Colley, K.C.B., at Wakkerstroom on the 27th of September, 1880, and the following order issued :—

"The King's Dragoon Guards being about to leave the Station for India, the Major-General Commanding, in bidding farewell to the officers and men of this fine Regiment, wishes them a prosperous voyage, and all good fortune and honour in the future.

"Though a portion of the Regiment only took part in the final struggle at Ulundi, while most of it was engaged in the less stirring but equally arduous and important duty of guarding the communications of the Army, yet it contributed in an exceptional degree to the complete success of the Campaign, and to the ultimate pacification of Zululand. The capture of Cetewayo by Lieut.-Colonel Marter and a patrol of the King's Dragoon Guards, will always be recalled as one of the most successful exploits of the war of which it was the conclusion, and will serve to associate the name of the Regiment with the future peace and prosperity of Natal and Zululand."

A detachment was left at Pietermaritzburg, under command of Major Brownlow, with a view of proceeding to England to form the dépôt of the Regiment.

1881.—The following is an extract from the G.O.C. Natal and Transvaal, dated 1st February :—

Para. 18. “Laing’s Nek. The mounted squadron moving on the right of the infantry gradually drew up on the slope of the isolated hill on our right, and, coming under fire of the Boers on the hill, faced the hill and charged. This charge was splendidly led by Major Brownlow, who, with Sergt.-Major Lunny, King’s Dragoon Guards, was first on the ridge. Major Brownlow’s horse was shot under him, and Sergt.-Major Lunny was instantly killed ; but Major Brownlow shot the Boer leader with his revolver, and continued to lead his men, who now crowned the ridge. Could he have been promptly supported, the hill was won, for the Boers had already begun to retreat ; but the fire was still heavy, while many of the horses were quite untrained to stand fire. The Support Troop was checked ; the leading troop fatigued, with all leaders down, could not push on, and the whole gave way down the hill.

Para. 24. “I have already reported the gallant charge of the mounted squadron under Major Brownlow, and I would now express my very high sense of the services rendered by that officer.

“With a small number of dismounted Dragoons, A.S.C., and volunteers from the infantry regiments at his command, and great difficulty in obtaining horses and equipment, he has with indefatigable industry and zeal succeeded in creating a most serviceable mounted force, with which he has admirably performed the scouting and other cavalry duties of the column.

“In the charge his conduct was conspicuous and his escape wonderful. Associated with him, alike, in organising and training this force, and in the charge, his Sergt.-Major, Troop Sergt.-Major J. Lunny, King’s Dragoon Guards, died beside him as they crested the hill together in sight of the whole force, and no man ever died more gallantly.”

Among the many gallant deeds performed, that of Private Doogan, King’s Dragoon Guards, is reported as follows :—

“Private Doogan, servant to Major W. V. Brownlow, was charging with his troop, when Major Brownlow’s horse was shot. Seeing the Major dismounted among the Boers, he rode up, and though himself severely wounded, dismounted and wished Major Brownlow to take his horse, receiving another wound while trying to get him to take it.”

For this service Doogan was awarded the V.C.

1881-1890.—The Regiment served in India during this period, being quartered at Meerut, Rawal Pindi and Muttra, taking part during this period in the various camps of exercise.

Colonel Vernon Napier, the officer commanding the Regiment, was unfortunately killed from a fall from his horse when “pig sticking” at Muttra. The death of this most capable commanding officer was a great loss to the Regiment.

During the time the Regiment was quartered at Muttra the present Emperor of Russia, when on a tour in India with his suite, was well entertained by the corps, and on His Majesty's departure he made a handsome present to the officers' mess, and was most favourably impressed with the appearance of the men and horses of the Regiment.

1891.—The Regiment returned to England during this year and were quartered at Shorncliffe on their arrival.

1891–1901.—During this period they once more went through the usual routine of home service. In addition the Regiment in 1893 was ordered to Windsor to replace the 1st regiment of Life Guards who had committed a breach of discipline by cutting up their saddlery.

The Regiment occupied quarters as follows:—

1891 Shorncliffe.	1893 Windsor.	1894 Norwich.
1896 Colchester.	1898 Dublin.	1901 Aldershot.

1901–1902.—The Regiment took part in the Boer War during the period 1901 and 1902, and arrived in South Africa in January, 1901, under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel Mostyn Owen, C.B.

Prior to its departure for the seat of war, the following letter was received by Colonel Mostyn Owen, commanding the King's Dragoon Guards, from Count Paar, A.D.C. General, to His Majesty the Emperor of Austria.

General Adjutant,
Sr. Maj., Deskaisers und Konigs.

842
No. G. A.

To Lieut.-Colonel Henry Mostyn Owen,
Commanding 1st King's Dragoon Guards, Aldershot.

SIR,

His Imperial and Royal Apostolic Majesty, my most Gracious Lord and Emperor, has been reached by the intelligence that the 1st King's Dragoon Guards ordered to South Africa will leave England in the first days of the month coming.

Attached since nearly five years, as Colonel in Chief, by so many links to this gallant and renowned troop, His Imperial and Royal Apostolic Majesty takes the keenest interest in the fate of this distinguished Regiment, and bids in this occasion Most Graciously this sincere farewell greetings to all officers, non-commissioned officers, and men, who, under your command are bound to start from the native soil. His Imperial and Royal Apostolic Majesty wishes heartily that also in future times, Providence may grant to the proceedings of the Regiment, which members, as a special mark of honour, wear nowadays his Imperial Eagle, the support to which the 1st King's Dragoon Guards own their glorious past. According to His Imperial and Royal Apostolic Majesty's commands, I have the honour to forward to you, Lieut.-Colonel, the precedent informations, beseeching you to notify them to all ranks of the Regiment. With my personal wishes for your welfare.

I am, dear Lieut.-Colonel, as always,
Faithfully yours,

PAAR, G.O.C.,

A.D.C. General of H.M., the Emperor and King.

Vienna,
30th Dec., 1900.

It formed part of the column concentrated at Naaupoort, O.F.S., under the command of Colonel E. C. Bethune, and was occupied in pursuit of De Wet, who laagered at De-Put on the 13th February, 1901, where late in the afternoon he was unearthed by Plumer. The rain continued to fall all that night and next day—both sides halted knee-deep in water.

On the 14th Plumer attacked the Burghers, being contained in front by the King's Dragoon Guards and Imperial Light Horse. The position was turned westwards, the Boers followed their transport around to Bas-Berg, pursuit being shortly foiled by another storm which laid the tracks two feet deep in mud.

The pursuit was continued on the 16th and 17th. De Wet fled northward, and while resting at Gras-Pan was again discovered by Plumer.

On the 21st at Slyp-Steen information was received that De Wet's guns were close ahead with beaten animals.

The troop horses were all but exhausted, but a mixed party consisting of the King's Dragoon Guards and others, pushed on, led by Colonel Mostyn Owen of the King's Dragoon Guards. After a three hours' chase which foundered most of the horses, two pieces of artillery were sighted on the road to Disselfontein surrounded by Burghers, who, thinking that they had outrun pursuit, were preparing to bivouac. Every Boer immediately galloped away in panic.

By nightfall, when Plumer halted at Disselfontein, besides the guns and two ammunition carts, 102 Burghers were prisoners (an unlooked for celebration of the Anniversary of the 47th foundation of their State).

At Gras-Pan, close to Wonderfontein, which was to be Broadwood's bivouac for the night of the 2nd August, two squadrons under Captain F. Quicke captured a laager of 65 wagons and 4000 cattle with little trouble.

The casualties in the regiment during this campaign were as follows :—

Killed or died of wounds : 4 officers and 8 rank and file.

Died of disease : 27 rank and file.

Wounded : 8 officers and 29 rank and file.

Captured by the Boers : 2 officers.

Missing : 5 rank and file.

Total : 14 officers and 69 rank and file.

The officers killed were :—Major F. C. Quicke and Captains W. M. Marter, P. R. Denny and E. A. Williams. Wounded : Colonels A. H. M. Edwards and J. C. Briggs, Major H. de C. Eastwood (twice), Captain Rasbotham and Lieutenants L. S. Denny, Harris and F. H. Charlton.

The following officers of the Regiment on retired pay also served in various capacities during this campaign :—

Colonels Lowry, Bates, Forbes; Major F. Fernie; Captain I. O'Donnell.

Sergeant H. Tolfree and Private Pope were mentioned in despatches for gallantry.

1903.—The Regiment formed part of the Army of Occupation after the War and was quartered at Potchefstroom (1902-1903) in the Transvaal, and returned to England in 1903, and on its arrival was quartered at Hounslow.

1905.—The Regiment was quartered at Aldershot.

1907.—The Regiment was again at Hounslow, and left for India in November of this year, and on arrival was quartered at Amballa, its present Station.

1912.—"The King's Regiment of Dragoon Guards when first embodied ranked "as Second Regiment of Horse in the English Service. In numbers and "rates of pay and other particulars, it was placed upon an equality with "the Royal Regiment of Horse Guards, and its Regimental Records procured by its conduct the high rank it then obtained. It has been "employed on the military operations of, and has distinguished itself in, "battles which have added lustre to the British Arms, and exalted the "military reputations of the Empire."

APPENDIX I

THE following Recruiting Poster was circulated, probably in March, 1800 or 1801 :—

FIRST OR KING'S DRAGOON GUARDS.

Commanded by General Sir William Augustus Pitt, K.B.

A few

Dashing Lads are now wanted to complete the above well-known Regiment to a new Establishment. Any young man who is desirous to make a Figure in Life, and wishes to quit a dull labourious Retirement in the Country, has now an opportunity of entering at once into that glorious state of Ease and Independence which he cannot fail to enjoy in the King's Dragoon Guards. The superior comforts and advantages of a Dragoon in this Regiment need only be made known to be generally coveted. All young men who have their own interest at heart and are fortunate enough to make this distinguished Regiment their choice, are requested so apply immediately to Sergeant Tribbles at the Angel Inn, Honiton, where they will receive the Highest Bounty and all the advantages of a Dragoon.

As recruits are now flocking in from all quarters, no time is to be lost ; And it is hoped that no young man will so far neglect his own interest as not to embrace this glorious opportunity without delay.

N.B.—This Regiment is supposed to be mounted on the most beautiful, fine, active black geldings this Country ever produced.—The Bringer of a good Recruit will receive a reward of Three Guineas.

PART II

OLD COMRADES ASSOCIATION KING'S DRAGOON GUARDS.

ANNUAL REPORT.

1. A General Meeting was held at the Veterans Club, Holborn, on the 20th April, 1912. Colonel A. H. M. Edwards, C.B., M.V.O., presided.

Colonel W. H. Thomson, Major Bell Smythe and about 20 ex-K.D.G.s were present.

The chairman (Colonel Edwards) addressed the meeting, pointing out that the "Old Comrades Association" was inaugurated by Messrs. Stroud, Rickman, and others, with Bdr.-General Birkbeck as President, and was nothing more or less than the Annual Reunion and Dinner.

2. In June 1911 it was considered possible to build upon this, and the officers agreed to help financially, while the men of the Regiment were also asked to assist. This they have done most generously.

3. At this meeting a Committee was elected, with Major Bell Smythe as Chairman, Major H. de C. Eastwood, D.S.O., as Treasurer, Captain O'Donnell as Honorary Secretary, and 8 ex-K.D.G. (rank and file) of the Regiment as members.

4. A Benevolent Fund has now been placed on a sound footing, and is supported by subscriptions from officers past and present. The men now serving pay 1s. each annually, and those who have left the old corps pay what they can afford. The total receipt for the year 1911 and 1912, from the above sources amounted to £56 17s. 2d.

5. From the 1st April to 30th June, 1912, the sum of £41 2s. 5d. was expended in relief (see Appendix A. to the account for 1911 and 1912). There were 240 members on the books in April, 1912. Circulars were sent to these men, and over 50 per cent. were returned as "not known."

6. The Paymaster at Dover was then appealed to, and this officer very kindly sent addresses of some 600 ex-K.D.G.s, who were either pensioners or reservists.

7. The Association has now on its roll 760 subscribing members, but this number should be increased, especially from those who have left the Regiment and are now in civil life, when they realise what good work is now being done for their less fortunate comrades, also their wives and children.

8. It only requires from each man, when in receipt of weekly wages, the sum of twopence per week. This sum would pay for his annual dinner, and leave a good margin for the Benevolent Fund.

The funds might be further increased by donations from the wives and families of officers and men. Several ladies have already sent subscriptions.

Legacies from wills might also be looked for.

What is really necessary is to get a "capital" together of £1000 or more, when relief could be paid out of the interest, and the Association would be not only solvent, but established on a business footing.

9. The Association does what it can to obtain work for men on discharge, and for this purpose, is in touch with all the Army and Navy Employment Agencies, and now that this small pamphlet has been published, the men will be able to apply to their old comrades (whose addresses are given) who are now in civil employment, and many of them will no doubt obtain suitable work.

10. The following addition was made in the rules under the heading "Objects": after the word "distress" add "including women and children of the Regiment."

11. Since the accounts for 1911 and 1912 were closed, a donation of £100 was received from His Imperial and Apostolic Majesty Francis Joseph, Emperor of Austria and King of Hungary, and His Majesty was, on your behalf, thanked for his generous gift through the Austrian Ambassador in London.

12. The Committee decided to purchase £400 of India 3 per cent. inscribed stock, for which £312 was paid. The trustees for this investment to be the Honorary Treasurer and Secretary for the time being. The endowment from the various investments will amount to £19 10s. per annum.

13. The Annual Dinner took place at the Cannon Street Hotel on the 22nd June last, when there were present eighty-two officers and men. Major-General Brownlow, C.B., the President of the Old Comrades Association, presided, and a most enjoyable evening was the result of this gathering. (For those present see appendix "B.")

The following are copies of some of the telegrams sent out and received during the evening.

To the Equerry-in-Waiting to H.M. The King, Windsor Castle.

The President and members of the 1st (King's) Dragoon Guards, Old Comrades Association, dining to-night at the Cannon Street Hotel, pray your Majesty to accept the expression of their loyalty and devotion on the 10th anniversary of the formation of the Association.

From the Equerry-in-Waiting.

Please convey to all present His Majesty's thanks for their loyal message.
S. PONSONBY.

To the Adjutant-General, Count Paar, Vienna.

The Old Comrades of all ranks King's Dragoon Guards present their respectful homage to His Imperial Royal and Apostolic Majesty, the Emperor of Austria Hungary, on the occasion of their Annual Dinner at the Cannon Street Hotel.

From General Count Paar.

His Imperial and Royal Apostolic Majesty accepted most graciously the homage proffered by your Excellency and the past members of the King's Dragoon Guards on the occasion of yesterday's Annual Meeting, and thanks heartily for this touching proof of never-failing attachment to the Regiment's Colonel-in-Chief.

By His Majesty's Command,
GENERAL COUNT PAAR.

To the Officer-Commanding King's Dragoon Guards, Amballa.

Warmest greetings to the Old Corps and sincere thanks for the help and assistance given to Old Comrades.

A letter was received from Mr. Jacques, R.S.M., wishing (on behalf of the Regiment) all manner of success to the Association.

From Surgeon-Major McSheehy—"Regret unexpectedly detained ; wish all a pleasant evening."

Members are requested to inform the Hon. Secretary if there are any inaccuracies in men's record of service, and to give early intimation of any change in their address. Several members have neglected to do this, and they cannot now be traced.

The subscriptions for the year 1912-13 should be paid as early as possible, and not later than the 1st June, together with the sum of 4s. for those who intend being present at the next Annual Dinner, which will be held at the Cannon Street Hotel on Saturday the 21st June at 8 p.m., when it is to be hoped all the members who can do so will attend.
